

WINNARD

A MACHINE THAT WORKED FOR 140 YEARS.

A COMPANY THAT STILL DOES.

Sheffield has always been a city of makers — and Winnard has been part of that story since the late 1800s.

The photographs shown here capture one of our oldest workshop machines: a Victorian-era grinder that served generations of engineers. Right up until October 2025, it was still doing exactly what it had done since the days of steam power — grinding and finishing butchers' sharpening rods with the same steady rhythm it kept for more than a century.

- It's more than a piece of equipment.
- It's a reminder of where we come from.

Every hub, every brake component, every engineered solution we produce today carries that same Sheffield DNA: durability, honesty, and pride in doing the job properly.

Winnard managed to save this historic machine from being scrapped and is now on display at our Rotherham warehouse.
